COVER STORY

18 'We've got an incredible board': The Tupperware brand of governance

INTERVIEW WITH RICK GOINGS

The Tupperware Brands chairman and CEO champions the value that directors can add ... as long as there is no crowding out of the board agenda what their top priority should be — to grow the company. 'We need to rethink the whole process of how boards ensure growth.'

FEATURES

24 Boards: Build back, and build better

BY PAUL OTELLINI

A director's obligation is to take the long look ahead and invest for the future to ensure that your company, and your country, is an engine of new ideas and competitive leadership. Intel's billion-dollar bets.

27 A director's 5 rules for difficult times

BY BLYTHE MCGARVIE

Courage and confidence come from more than just keeping a close eye on cash flow. Other touchstones: market share, board diversity, and the CEO's 'worldview' — 'the most critical reference point to learn.'

30 Directors A, B, and C: Independent? Yes... no... maybe... maybe not!

BY PHIL LOCHNER

The NYSE director independence rules come to conclusions that other reasonable minds might differ with. Where to draw the lines on conflicts and relationships? And, are these rules enough?

54 Does your board need a risk committee?

BY W. NEIL EGGLESTON AND DAVID C. WARE

The benefits can be compelling, but creating a board-level risk committee can itself be risky business. Certain factors deserve particular attention in weighing whether to take such a step.

56 Boards as overseers of human capital

BY EDWARD E. LAWLER III

Improvement is needed: this was true before the recession, and even truer now. What actions should be taken. Also, consultant Frank DiBernardino and board member Jacqueline Kane weigh in on the author's thesis.

60 A high-performance team: Identify, please
BY HOWARD GUTTMAN

The author asked three in-the-know executives what they would advise directors to look for in their top management team. Also, the value of unfettered dialogue, Alfred P. Sloan-style, in a team's success.

63 Book it: Best bets for board reading

From a roundup of new books, leadership insights on succession planning, finding your big idea, board-CEO decision making, developing esprit de corps, and facing the 'impossible' scenario in getting a deal done.

80 'Where was the board?' Where was I?

BY RICHARD SALOMON

A director puts that question to himself when he and his fellow board members have to put a company into Chapter 11.

DEPARTMENTS

4 From the Chairman

Paradigm Lost: The presumption may be that capitalism has failed, but don't give up just yet or it could be paradise lost forever.

6 Editor's Note

An awesome stat: Our Directors Roster reports a record-busting number of women being elected to boards.

COLUMNISTS

8 Quiddities

HOFFER KABACK

The Full Monty: Following the logic of full disclosure, everything you might need to know about a CEO.

10 Sutton's Laws

GARY SUTTON

Pass the Tums, please: A brush with backdated options shows how precarious board service can be.

12 Legal Brief

DOUG RAYMOND

Option repricing challenges: Directors need to weigh many competing considerations when deciding what is in the best interests of the company and its stakeholders.

14 Risk Matters

EVAN ROSENBERG

The best time to renew D&O coverage? Now. In this especially challenging period, take these steps to ensure you have the protection you need and deserve.

15 Evidence & Perspectives

RALPH A. WALKLING

Natural partners in a necessary partnership: With new legislation looming, the arm-in-arm relationship of academic research and business practice is more vital than ever.

17 Big Deal

BILL ROMAN

M&A thought process in turbulent times: The board's advice and consent on deal making over the next 12 months should be finely tuned to these three guideposts.

DIRECTORS ROSTER

Sponsored by Heidrick & Struggles

66 Roster: Tracking of 101 directors added to 87 company boards from January to March 2009.
